Roberto Mourey is a Senior Fellow of the Oxford Leadership Academy Mexico and a leading global executive.

His sound general management expertise, strong strategic vision, high focus on results and strong leadership comes from his experiences working with Former President Vicente Fox during his time in office and various multinational corporations such as Pepsi, Procter & Gamble and Televisa, the biggest TV network in Mexico. Roberto was also Vice President of Latin America for Monsanto and Commercial Vice President for Mexico for Telefónica.

Roberto has worked alongside a wide range of clients in various branches of industry such as telecommunications, industrial ingredients, confectionary, alcoholic beverages, services, cosmetics, OTC, Food & Beverage, and government affairs. He has also been involved in different mergers and acquisitions, and faced very challenging turbulent times which has enabled him to strengthen his leadership.

Currently Roberto is a business and leadership consultant, executive coach and Fellow of the Oxford Leadership Academy, Mexico.

He is currently working with the office of the Mexican Presidency, where he is working on communication and image projects for President Felipe Calderon and the Federal Government.

He published his first book, "The difference between Wanting and Being Able To" in March 2010. The book is about personal leadership and taking charge of your own destiny, a subject that Roberto is passionate about.
