
EXECUTIVE PROFILE

Kim Møller

PARTNER

“Kim is very experienced; he led by setting a great example, sharing his perspectives from across different industries and also his own personal life. It was a very interesting approach, involving the whole team and blending personal with professional experiences.”

Markus Heldt

President, Crop Protection Division
BASF SE

“Kim brought an authoritative, high level perspectives using accessible language and a clear, pleasant speaking style. Innovative ideas blended well with his ethical “call of duty” approach. The audience loved it and the conference was eventually a big success. Highly recommended if you are looking for a seasoned, entertaining orator with board-level experience in leadership building, capable of delivering thought-provoking messages that will trigger change.”

John Williams

General Manager
Pacific Power, Australia

Dr Kim Møller is a Partner of Oxford Leadership. Kim Møller is a highly regarded Advisor to Senior Leadership Teams in both large Global and medium sized International Companies including BASF, Electrolux, McDonalds, Adecco, Devoteam, Barwa and Roxtec. Kim is also a Public Speaker on Leadership and a Respected Facilitator at Leadership programmes.

Kim is a highly regarded strategist and researcher, formerly with Copenhagen Business School. He is best known for his ground-breaking research on Innovation and Corporate Social Responsibility and, in conjunction with Harvard Professor, Dr Michael Porter, research related to the Competitive Advantage of Nations.

The key concept of Dr Møller’s consulting work is the building of Trust, trust between management and staff to improve performance and employee satisfaction. Trust between companies to enable cooperation, synergy and increased competitiveness. Trust between companies and stakeholders to facilitate sustainable development in regions and countries.

He has worked with all of OLA’s core methodologies, delivering Strategic Focusing®, Self Managing Leadership® and Leading High Performing Teams programmes to both global and local clients including Telefonica, Electrolux, BASF, Barwa and Roxtec.

He graduated from The University of Copenhagen in 1980 (Master of Political Science) and he received his Ph.D. in 1986 from the Copenhagen Business School. He has been awarded the Tietgen Gold Medal for outstanding research in International Economics and Strategic Planning (1985) and the Business Economist 1st Prize for outstanding research in company stakeholder relations (1984).

Kim Møller has also headed a private Think Tank (Strategic Forum 1993 - 1995), served on a number of Boards and been the European President of the Great Place to Work Institute.

Kim works in Danish and English.