Abby Barton

FELLOW

abby.barton@oxfordleadership.com

“Abby is an enthusiastic engaging facilitator and experienced coach. She has the natural ability to connect at all levels and motivate others to maximise their own potential. Abby is a pleasure to work with, she is proactive, professional and has a focus on delivering results.”

Anne Clews
Director
Tetramap, UK

“There are coaches that are technically good at coaching but without much business experience, and coaches with great business experience but not much coaching skill. Abby has an unusual and valuable combination of both and I have experienced her capability at successfully coaching very senior leaders. Can't recommend her more highly.”

Jeremy Sweeney
Associate, Heidrick & Struggles
Founder, JMS Resources

Abby is a Fellow of OxfordLeadership. She is an executive coach and strategic consultant with a strong commercial and leadership background. Abby gained a broad experience of blue chip companies across many industries as a chartered accountant with PricewaterhouseCoopers. She then deepened her knowledge of business and leadership in roles spanning Commercial Finance, Business Development, Strategy and Transformation at Sainsburys and O2. She also ran O2's start-up accelerator and built a strong understanding of and network in the start-up ecosystem. Abby is based in the UK.

Abby has a combination of a very commercial and strategic mind with strong emotional intelligence and intuition. This enables her to build trust quickly, and coupled with her high energy and challenge, helps her clients get to the heart of issues, explore different perspectives and accelerate the process of change. Her coaching has helped leaders and organisations to improve performance, communication, collaboration, influence and motivation. Her work to help build high performing teams has focused on developing clear strategies, roles and accountabilities; and shared purpose, vision and values. She also has experience bridging the gap between corporates and start-ups and increasing her clients' agility and pace when it comes to innovation and change.

Abby is a qualified chartered accountant (ACA) and an ICF accredited coach (ACC). She has a NLP Diploma from Middlesex University, a BA in Geography and Anthropology from Durham University and has accreditations in The Leadership Circle, Tetramap, DISC and iWam profiling tools.

Abby works in English.
